New Communication Journals for 2007!

Environmental Communication: A Journal of Nature and Culture

Editor: Stephen Depoe

Volume 1, 2007, 2 issues per year
Increasing to 3 issues in 2008

Environmental Communication: A Journal of Nature and Culture publishes high-quality, peer-reviewed scholarship that examines theories, practices, and processes of communication as they relate to the environment around the world. As such, the journal serves as a nexus, a place of global connection and conversation, among scholars working in and across a variety of disciplines who explore how humans communicate about and within both natural and cultural environments.

Routledge is pleased to offer the first issue of the journal free online. To access this issue click here.

Discounted rates are also available for related societies. For further information click here.

Communication Methods and Measures

Editor: David R. Roskos-Ewoldsen - University of Alabama, USA

New in 2007 from Lawrence Erlbaum Associates!

The aims of Communication Methods and Measures are to bring developments in methodology, both qualitative and quantitative, to the attention of communication scholars, to provide an outlet for discussion and dissemination of methodological tools and approaches to researchers across the field, to comment on practices with suggestions for improvement in both research design and analysis, and to introduce new methods of measurement useful to communication scientists or improvements on existing methods.
